THE CANAL SUITS.

A Compromise Finally Effected For the Season.

Litigation is usually a very sober matter and land and water suits are serious indeed, but there occasionally intrudes, even into the dullest case, a beam of humor that is doubly enjoyable in the contrast. Such an incident occurred yesterday in the Tempe water suit.

It seems that on June 23d, Colonel Herring, attorney for the Tempe Canal Company, moved the Court, on behalf of his clients, for an injunction against all the canals of the valley, except the Salt River Valley and Maricopa canals, and also asked for the discharge of William Standage, the water commissioner. The motion was denied and the Court directed the commissioner to distribute the water practically according to the order of last year. The Tempe canal, under the advice of its attorney, then, as a senior right, claimed a right to an unreasonable amount of water, under the rule invoked by Herring.

This was submitted to by the commissioner until last Tuesday, when the Salt River Valley and Maricopa canals claimed for themselves the benefit of this order—the result being that Tempe farmers were obliged to look out upon empty ditches.

Yesterday morning the grangers of Tempe Rocked to the Court House to find out what was the matter. They were informed by the Court that there was nothing the matter, except that they were "hoist by their own petard." It was a sort of a boomerang stroke.
